Success for RPHS Students at State Competition

It was a special day for a pair of theater students from the Rosa L. Parks School of Fine and Performing Arts (RPHS) who took high honors at the 2018 Speech & Theatre Association of New Jersey Governor Awards competition. Congratulations to Damia Thomas for earning a trophy for Comedic Monologue, and Cassandra Rodriguez for earning 3rd place in that category as well.

Speech and Theater Association of New Jersey (STANJ) is the voice of advocacy for inclusion of speech and theater arts in the educational curricula. The association includes volunteer members from elementary, middle, high school, college and professional theater who are interested in acting, directing, forensics, musical theater, technical theater and theater education.

Mr. Solis' TV Productions students from the JFK School of Business Technology Marketing and Finance (BTMF) and the School of Education and Training (SET) conducted interviews with JFK School Counselors, Ms. Leiva and Ms. Livesey about college readiness.

Some of the bounty of new toys collected by the district McKinney Vento program. It was a very happy Christmas for program children thanks to generous donors.
